THE WORD CONTEST.

Little Miss Nora Siegel was awarded

Little Miss Norsh Siegel Was the Successful Competitor Yesterday.

the $10 gold piece at the Richmond Theatre yesterday. All during the week communications were received at the theatre containing lists of words made from the letters which composed the name, "Patti Rosa." Good English words, to be found in Webster's un abridged dictionary, without plurals, and no letters except T and A to be used twice, were the terms of the contest, and many a little mind busled itself last week making out a list. When the last week making out a list. When the committee of newspaper men gathered at the box office yesterday morning at 10 o'clock to decide who would be most successful, the sight that greated them was rather dismaying. Letters large and letters small-bulky letters and little insignificant looking epistles greeted them on all sides, and the box office resembled on all sides, and the box omce resembled a second-class post-office. The newspaper men began their work, and for nearly four hours used every effort to be just, fair and perfectly impartial to all contestants. It was soon ascertained that only lists containing over a hundred month warre to be considered. hundred words were to be considere as there were many over that number and the investigation soon narrowed down to a couple of dozen. Then to half that number, and finally to six lists. Had geographical, Biblical and foreign words been allowed, many whose lists were thrown out would have stood an excellent chance of receiving the prize, but after striking out such words, these lists fell below others presented by several con-testants. At last there were four lists, and the words in them had to be found in Webster's dictionary. A careful and to be tound in Webster's dictionary. A careful and tedious examination was then made, and it was at last ascertained that Miss Siegel had the greatest number of good Parelleh words. English words, her list, after revision, containing over two hundred words. She was not at the matinee, so I evening, before the performance began, she, accompanied by her brother, Dr. Charles M. Siegel, went behind the curtain and Patti Rosa, in a charming mantain and research little Miss Siegel with ner, presented little Miss Siegel with two bright shining $5 gold pieces. The consolation prize—a ficket to the last night's performance—was awarded to a little darkey, he handing in four words as the result of his efforts.

Ten New Houses.

A survey was being made yesterday of the property owned by Mr. Emanuel Raab, occupying a large portion of the square running both ways from and including the Gospel Mission building, at the corner of Main and Seventh streets, for the purpose of removing the old for the purpose of removing the old ramshackle buildings thereon and replacing them with new ones. these buildings are very unsightly and almost falling down with age. It is said ten new buildings will take their place.

The report that the new buildings will be of unimposing character is heard with regret by the property owners, but it would seem that very modest houses would improve the present appearance of the leading of the locality.

No Bieye e Races.

A committee from the Richmond Cycle Club appeared before the executive com-mittee of the Virginia Agricultural and Mechanical Society yesterday morning mechanical Society yesterday morning and asked that a small appropriation be made to secure prizes for bicycle races to be run at the Exposition Grounds during the coming State Fair.
